In Delhi, actress Ashley Judd opens up about being a victim of sexual assault

At the World Congress Against Sexual Exploitation of Women and Girls, American actor and activist Ashley Judd spoke about gender discrimination and her personal experiences.

Two hundred and fifty key voices in the global movement to abolish prostitution systems gathered for a World Congress Against Sexual Exploitation of Women and Girls in the National Capital on Monday, January 30.

American actor and activist Ashley Judd, survivor and author Rachel Moran, and Political leader from Chhattisgarh Soni Sori were present at the event, among others.

Actor and activist Ashley Judd spoke against gender discrimination and her own experiences of dealing with sexual assault at the event. The actor, who is India for the next few days, opened up about being a victim of assault as a child.
Ashley Judd posted this picture of herself on Instagram with the caption, Honored to be at the #LastGirlFirst conference in Delhi with my friends from @apneaap (sic).

Judd’s visit comes just days after her recital of Nasty Woman at the Women’s March held across the United States on Donald Trump’s first day of presidency made headlines.

Judd added that there are severe flaws in law on violence against women across the world, and the move for the abolition of trafficking would end harassment. “If us as survivors can come together, we can create change. The onus of the crime should only go to the perpetrator. And laws should give women and girls exit strategies to get out of trafficking,” she said.

At the end of her five-minute speech, she spoke in Hindi and urged everyone to rise against sexual exploitation, and decriminalising of prostituted women and girls. “Ab samjhauta nahii,” said Judd.

Judd’s visit comes just days after her recital of Nasty Woman at the Women’s March held across the United States on Donald Trump’s first day of presidency made headlines.

Ashley Judd (centre) at the event in New Delhi on Monday.
In Delhi, actress Ashley Judd opens up about being a victim of sexual assault: Celebrity, News - India Today

Hollywood has often been accused of discriminating against women, like every other entertainment industry around the world. Ashley shared, "There is a big pay gap in Hollywood, because of gender discrimination, and my lifetime earnings are 40 per cent less than what I should have earned, had there been pay equality in the industry."

The Congress was organised by Apne Aap Women Worldwide and CAP International, and had representatives from over 30 countries. "We want to fight the injustices that the last girl is subjected to. The last girl who gets into prostitution because of poverty, her gender or her caste. African Americans in the US, Indigenous in Australia and Canada, a refugee in Africa and Europe, all those who are preyed upon by traffickers," said Ruchir Gupta, founder, Apne Aap.

The Congress was held at a time when a new Trafficking Bill is going to be introduced in the parliament. The group is demanding provisions for prevention of trafficking through budget allocations for investment in housing, food and education for girls at risk.

Women's groups in India, however, have objected to the event. An open letter to the delegates signed by SANGRAM—a culmination of nine groups—has slammed the event in a letter. The letter points out: "Organisations like the Coalition for the Abolition of Prostitution International (CAP Int'l) persist in erroneously viewing all women in sex work as victims of trafficking and violence denying them the very right to call themselves workers."

Judd later took to social media to share her experience of being in India. She posted a picture of herself wearing a garland with Javed Akhtar, even though she erroneously spelt his name as 'Jared' Akhtar.
In Delhi, actress Ashley Judd opens up about being a victim of sexual assault: Celebrity, News - India Today

4/27/2017

It was so exiting to meet Bollywood's greatest screenplay writer and poet Jared Ahktar. Thanks @ruchiragupta! #India #Bollywood

A photo posted by Ashley Judd (@ashley_judd) on Jan 26, 2017 at 7:04pm PST

After the event, Judd and other attendees indulged in a round of bhangra over some authentic dhol beats:

A video posted by Ashley Judd (@ashley_judd) on Jan 30, 2017 at 4:24am PST

Enjoyed my time at the #LastGirlFirst conference.

A video posted by Ashley Judd (@ashley_judd) on Jan 30, 2017 at 4:24am PST

MCD poll results: AAP divided over rigged EVMs cry, 50 per cent were prepared for loss

Kashmir: Students clash with police in Pulwama demanding release of peers

Delhi Police along with TTV Dinakaran land in Chennai for further questioning

Kupwara attack: Army strengthens vigil in Jammu-Kashmir to curb infiltration

Apple iPhone 6 at Rs 28,999 isn't such a good idea. Because, OnePlus 3T

Here is how Cheteshwar Pujara and Ajinkya Rahane led India's fight back

After Suchi leaks, Dhanush's sister Vimala Geetha writes an emotional message

More Videos
Sunil Grover and Ali Asgar team up for this TV show

WHAT IS YOUR REACTION?

75% HAPPY
25% AMUSED
0% EXCITED
0% ANGRY
0% SAD

Apple iPhone 6 at Rs 28,999 isn't such a good idea. Because, OnePlus 3T
Here is how Cheteshwar Pujara and Ajinkya Rahane led India's fight back
After Suchi leaks, Dhanush's sister Vimala Geetha writes an emotional message